

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

TO

HER MAJESTY'S PRINCIPAL SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to submit Part One of the Judicial Statistics for the year 1897, containing the statistics relating to crime and criminal proceedings.

The Introduction has again been prepared by Mr. H. B. Simpson, Principal Clerk in the Criminal Department of the Home Office.

The first four Comparative Tables—Tables A to D—are in the same form as in previous years, and cover the 20 years from 1878 to 1897.

Three new Comparative Tables are given—Tables E to G. These Tables are fully discussed in the Introduction.

One new Annual Table (Table XXXIX) has been added, showing the terms of detention before trial of all persons tried during the year at Assizes and Quarter Sessions. It is proposed that this Table should in future be given annually. The Tables which formerly appeared as Tables XXXVIII and XXXIX are united, and appear as Table XXXVIII. With these exceptions the Annual Tables are in exactly the same form as in the volume for 1896.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

C. E. TROUP.

INTRODUCTION

CRIMINAL STATISTICS

For the Year 1897.

INTRODUCTION TO THE CRIMINAL STATISTICS FOR THE YEAR 1897.

INTRODUCTION.

The Criminal Statistics for 1897 present similar features to those noticed in the reports on the statistics for recent years. Though the number of offences for which proceedings were taken at Assizes and Quarter Sessions is slightly higher than in 1896, the difference is not sufficiently large to justify us in assuming any real check in the progressive decrease which has been observable during the last 20 years. The total number of such proceedings was 11,215, a number less than in any year since 1857, with the exception of 1896. If the indictable cases disposed of summarily are added, the total, 50,736, is lower than in any year since 1860, with the exception of 1875 and 1896. The annual average for the five years ending with 1897 is 11,633 for cases tried on indictment, and 53,174 for all indictable cases—numbers which are much lower than for the three previous five-year periods, but higher than the actual figures for 1897.

The progressive character of the decrease is well illustrated in Table E, which presents the figures for the last 20 years in such a form as to exclude merely fortuitous fluctuations in a regular series of figures. Here actual figures are not found at all, but under each year is given the annual average number of persons dealt with for indictable offences during that year, the two years previous, and the two years following it. The figure for 1895, which represents the annual average for 1893–7, is less than that for any year since 1876; and furthermore, the figures since 1881 show a continuous annual decrease, which is perfectly regular, except that in 1889 the number dropped to a point which it did not reach again till 1892.

If in the same Table the figures for cases dealt with at Assizes and Quarter Sessions only are taken, the result is the same except that the figure for 1892 is very slightly higher than for 1891.

The difference therefore between the figure for 1895 and that for 1882—7,833—may safely be regarded as a real index to the diminution in indictable offences during the last 15 years. The legislation of 1879 extending the summary jurisdiction of magistrates over indictable offences has rendered a comparison with the figures for earlier periods somewhat difficult.

This conclusion is supported by Table F, where the number of offences reported to the police are dealt with on a similar plan. The decrease since 1881 is quite as steady and even more marked, the figures falling from 96,780 to 82,257—a drop of 14,523. The decrease is entirely due to a decrease in Class III—offences against property without violence.

In the other classes the progress of the figures is by no means even; in Classes I and II—offences against the person and offences against property with violence—there is a distinct tendency to increase, and in Classes IV and V a decided but irregular decrease in the figures, at all events for recent years.

In Class VI (Miscellaneous Offences) the number of persons tried has steadily decreased since 1884; the number of offences reported to the Police has increased—a result entirely due to a steady increase in the number of attempts at suicide reported.

These tendencies in the statistics of crime are clearly shown in the diagrams 1, 2, and 3. It will further be noticed that so far as the total number of offences, or the number within Class III, which dominates the whole, is concerned, there is no difference whether we take the number of offences reported to the police, or the number of persons committed for trial or dealt with summarily. The latter is usually accepted as the most trustworthy index to the decrease or increase of indictable crime, but it is well sometimes to test it by other data, and the close correspondence shown in diagram 1 confirms the practice followed in this matter. In diagram 3 there is a fairly close correspondence between the lines representing the two sets of figures, except in the case of offences within Class VI, and this, as already mentioned, is due to the large increase in the number of attempts at suicide reported to the police. In diagram 2, however, we find no such correspondence. The marked irregularity in the line representing the number of offences against property with violence (Class II) reported to the police is the result partly of a change in the mode of recording the figures during the earlier part of our period, partly, as it would appear, of a real increase in the number of small burglaries and housebreakings. Offences of this kind are mostly the work of professional criminals who may fairly be credited with a considerable number of such crimes during each period of liberty; and as owing to the reduction in the length of sentences passed in recent years the periods of liberty for habitual thieves must recur more frequently than formerly, we must expect to find a growing divergence between the number of offences committed in this class and the number of persons brought to justice.

The diminution in the length of sentences generally observable between 1883 and 1893 was commented on in the Introduction to the Statistics for 1893, and again in 1894, and it was estimated that it was sufficient to account for a decrease in the prison population of nearly 30 per cent. For the present purpose it may be remarked that in 1877 of 1,197 persons convicted on indictment of offences within Class II, 256 or more than 21 per cent. were sentenced to penal servitude; in 1897, out of 1,762, there were only 218—less than 13 per cent. Moreover, of the persons sent to penal servitude, 219 were sentenced in 1877 to terms of more than six years, while in 1897 there were only 38 so sentenced. Per contra in 1897 there were as many as 433 persons sentenced to imprisonment for terms not exceeding three months as against 135 so sentenced in 1877. To put the matter in another way, in 1877 more than 35 per cent., and in 1897 less than 22 per cent. of the persons convicted of housebreaking and other offences within Class II were sent to prison for terms of more than 12 months.

The earlier period at which the majority of convicted housebreakers and burglars are now at liberty to revert to crime must be borne in mind in considering the increase between 1877 and 1897 in the number of offences within Class II reported to the police. As this class contains a larger proportion than any other class of "professional" crimes, i.e., those which are due not to special causes, such as sudden passion, drunkenness, or temporary distress, but to a settled intention to gain a living by dishonesty, it is clear that more than in any other class the number of offences reported is likely to be out of proportion to the number of individuals prosecuted, and the abnormal divergence between lines 1 and 1A in diagram 2 as compared with the lines representing other classes of crime may fairly be taken as illustrating the increased leniency shown in recent years towards "professional" criminals, rather than as evidence of any increase in their number.

If we now take the actual figures for different classes of offences in 1897 as given in Table A, we find that the number in Class III is below that for any other of the last 20 years, and much below the average for 1893–7. The number of offences against the person was slightly lower than in the four years previous, but higher than in some earlier years. The burglaries and robberies falling within Class II, though below the average for 1893–7, were more numerous than in 1896.

Class V shows a marked fall below any year since 1890.

On the whole there seems no reason to doubt that the decrease in the number of indictable offences is a continuous one.

It is worth while, however, to look at the number of proceedings taken summarily with respect to offences against the Prevention of Crimes Act and certain sections of the Vagrancy Act, which are the special mark of the habitual criminal. Whether a burglar is indicted for housebreaking or punished summarily for being on enclosed premises for an unlawful purpose, is often merely a question of evidence; and it is mere chance often that decides whether a thief frequenting a public place for the purpose of picking pockets shall be charged with felony, or with a contravention of the law punishable only on summary conviction.

Under the Prevention of Crimes Act a person who has been twice convicted of crime can within 7 years of his last conviction be summarily punished on evidence raising a strong presumption that he has reverted to crime. Thus, if he is found on enclosed premises, it is not necessary, as under the Vagrancy Act, to prove an unlawful purpose; it is sufficient if he cannot give a good account of himself. It is true that among the offences created by the Prevention of Crimes Act there are some (i.e., those that can be committed by licence-holders and persons under Police Supervision) which do not necessarily involve any criminal intention, but there are not many of these, and on the whole it may be said that the more habitual criminals there are at large, the more proceedings are likely to be taken under the Prevention of Crimes Act and the Vagrancy Act.

If we treat the figures given in Table B under the heads "Prevention of Crimes Acts," "Possessing picklocks and other implements," "Found in enclosed premises," and "Frequenting," in the same manner as the figures given in Tables E and F were treated, and give for each year not the actual number of offences, but the average annual number for a period of 5 years, the following is the result:—

Year - -	1876	1877	1878	1879	1880	1881	1882	1883	1884	1885	1886	1887	1888	1889	1890	1891	1892	1893	1894	1895
Total -	4,942	5,122	5,378	5,496	5,627	5,628	5,465	5,109	4,829	4,700	4,597	4,640	4,727	4,827	4,805	4,794	4,835	4,824	4,871	4,821

The actual figure for 1897 is 4,467. The fluctuations in the whole series of figures are too numerous and too irregular to allow of any positive inference being drawn from them; but at least there is nothing to affect the conclusion suggested by the statistics of indictable crime.

Turning to the figures relating to Summary Proceedings as a whole—excluding those for indictable offences—we find their number in 1897 (698,980) is nearly 30,000 more than the corresponding figure for last year, which was itself higher than had ever been reached before. The increase is in no way surprising when the multiplication by statute of criminal offences punishable summarily is considered. The Session of 1897 was by no means fruitful in legislation of this kind, but it gave us at least a score of quite new offences punishable on summary conviction. It must be remembered too that the multiplication of bye-laws creating new offences proceeds at a great pace. Probably, however, as was suggested in the Introduction to the Statistics for 1896, the increase in summary proceedings is due less to the creation of new offences than to increased activity in enforcing the existing law. It is somewhat strange to find that the number of proceedings under the Highways Act in 1897 was higher than in any of the preceding 20 years. There has, moreover, been a steady increase from 18,886 in 1888 to 36,003 in 1897, which it is impossible to assign directly to any legislation, but which is no doubt due to the increased use of bicycles.

So, too, the prosecutions for Sunday trading continue to increase, being more frequent in 1897 than in any of the 20 years before, and those under the Vaccination Acts to decrease. On these heads there is nothing to add to the observations made in the Introduction to the 1896 statistics. It may in fact be said that the closer the figures are examined the more difficult it will be found to establish any immediate relation between legislation creating new offences punishable summarily and the number of criminal proceedings. With the growth of legislation of this kind there has been a growth in the number of prosecutions, but as a general rule the two tendencies cannot be said to correspond very closely. Thus in August 1896, an Act (59 and 60 Vict., cap. 27) came into force making the "bilking" of a London cabman a criminal offence; and it might naturally be expected that the number of prosecutions under the new Act in 1897 would be considerable enough to affect the figures relating to prosecutions under the Stage and Hackney Carriage Acts in the County of London. Turning to Table XII, we find the number of these prosecutions in 1897 was 5,171; it was 7,278 in 1893, 7,618 in 1894, 6,220 in 1895, and 5,181 in 1896; that is to say, during the year throughout which the new Act was in force, and the year for five months of which it was in force, any increase of prosecutions to which it gave rise was much more than counterbalanced by a decrease due to some other cause than legislation. Again, the Wild Birds Protection Act of 1896 enables much stricter protection to be afforded to wild birds than was formerly possible. As this can be done only in pursuance of orders made by local authorities since August 1896, it would be expected that the effect caused by the Act in an increase of the number of prosecutions would first show itself in 1897. As a matter of fact, the number of prosecutions under the Wild Birds Protection Acts fell from 224 in 1896 to 208 in 1897 The figures for the 3 years before 1896, however, were 121, 181 and 178. The real truth probably is that as a general rule an increase in prosecutions of this nature is a symptom of an increased sensitiveness on the part of the public, which may or may not also show itself in legislation, rather than an actual effect of legislation itself.

The number of indictable cases tried summarily was less in 1897 than it has been for any year since the passing of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, with the single exception of 1895, the number being 39,521 for 1897 and 39,302 for 1895.

So far, therefore, as the figures relating to breaches of the law are concerned, we may be fairly confident that while minor offences are continuously tending to increase, serious crime is steadily diminishing.

In the figures given in other tables of our Statistics, it is scarcely possible to trace any positive tendency.

There have been a larger number of claims for the extradition of criminals to foreign countries than in any year since 1894, but the number is actually very small. In 1893 it was 40, and in the four years since then 49, 38, 35, and 47. The numbers surrendered have been during these five years 33, 30, 25, 23, and 30. The fugitives from this country whose extradition has been claimed from foreign Governments have numbered 25, 24, 18, 8, and 22; the numbers of fugitives surrendered during the same years are 14, 9, 11, 3, and 9. One cannot but compare these figures with those for a country like France, which has a widely extended land frontier. In 1895—the last year for which the figures are available—the French Government surrendered no less than 193 fugitives under treaties of extradition; 1 to Spain, 5 to Monaco, 17 to Germany, 25 to Switzerland, 49 to Italy, and 84 to Belgium; and obtained the extradition of 168 of their own criminals, including 2 from Monaco, 3 from Italy, 5 from Germany, 11 from Spain, 33 from Switzerland, and 105 from Belgium.

What is, however, somewhat curious is that the fugitive criminals sent back from the colonies under the Fugitive Offenders Act for trial in this country are much fewer than those surrendered under extradition treaties. The numbers for the last 5 years have been 2, 3, 3, 3, and 3; the numbers returned to Colonies or British Possessions from the United Kingdom have been 3, 1, 3, 1, and 1.

Table XXV, though it has not a very high statistical value, throws an interesting light on the decrease of crime. Of the total number of persons against whom the police took proceedings, 9,840 are returned in 1897 as being habitually engaged in crime: the numbers in the four previous years are 13,023, 12,071, 10,880, and 9,843. The total number of persons proceeded against has, on the other hand, increased from 669,281 in 1893 to 757,485 in 1897; and of these the number of persons against whose character nothing was known to the police, similarly increased from 529,584 to 641,513. The number of suspected persons at large, as given in Table XXVI, has also fallen from 21,918 in 1893 to 16,826 in 1897. As these two tables may be regarded as giving a police estimate of the numbers of the criminal classes, they supply strong evidence of the continuous decrease in crime which has been inferred from the other figures at our disposal.

This year certain of the figures relating to Coroners' Inquests, contained in Tables XXIX and XXX, are summarised for the last 21 years in a special table, G, for purposes of comparison. Owing to changes in classification, it has only been found possible to do this with regard to a few of the columns now given in these tables.

The average annual total number of inquests held during 1877–79 was 26,990; during 1895–97 it was 34,178—an increase of 26 per cent. The average annual number of deaths during 1877–79 was 522,208; during 1895–96 it was 547,862. Thus, at present, for every 100 deaths, there are 6·2 inquests held; 21 years ago the proportion was only 5·1. If we take the middle period, 1886–88, we get an average of nearly 5·6 inquests for every 100 deaths. These figures point to an increased vigilance with regard to suspicious deaths. During the first three years, on the other hand, a verdict of wilful murder was returned once in every 153 inquests; during 1895–97, once in every 218 inquests.

If we take the whole series of figures together, some results are found worth notice. The average annual number of inquests during the 21 years was 30,031; of these, the number of inquests on infants less than a year old, of legitimate birth, formed, on an average, 15 per cent., and those on illegitimate children of the same age 3 per cent. The proportion of illegitimate births to the total number of births was 44 per 1,000 during the period 1886–95; that is to say more than 20 times as many legitimate children were born as illegitimate, but inquests on legitimate children were less than five times as numerous as those on illegitimate. Roughly speaking, then, we may say that inquests were about five times as frequent on illegitimate infants in proportion to their numbers as on legitimates. This is not in itself surprising, as many circumstances combine to make their deaths more frequently open to suspicion than the deaths of children born in wedlock, and, moreover, infants whose parentage is unknown are classed among the illegitimates; but there is more than this in the figures. The number of inquests held on legitimate children under a year old formed 15·4 per cent. of the total number of inquests; those on legitimate children between a year and seven years old formed 10·9 per cent. In the case of illegitimate children the proportions are 3 and 0·7 per cent. Roughly speaking the proportion of inquests on children under a year to those on the older children was in the case of legitimates 3 to 2; in the case of illegitimates 4 to 1; or to put the matter in a different way, out of 100 inquests on children from one to seven years old, 6 will be on illegitimates, 94 on legitimates; while of 100 inquests on children less than a year old, 19 will be on illegitimates and 81 on legitimates. A certain proportion of children returned as legitimate are, no doubt, really illegitimate, and this proportion is likely to be larger in the case of the older children, but even when allowance is made for this, the figures are somewhat remarkable.

The average number of verdicts of murder found by coroners' juries has been 170 a year. The number has fluctuated much during the 21 years, though towards the end of that period it has been, as already stated, considerably less in proportion to the number of inquests than at the beginning.

The average number of executions during 1877–97 was very nearly 17 a year. The cases of "justifiable homicide" numbered nearly 5 a year. Of the other verdicts, of which a fairly trustworthy record can be found, there were about 159 a year of "disease aggravated by neglect by others," 275 "want, cold, exposure, &c.," and 541 "excessive drinking." The number under the latter head has markedly increased during the last half of the 21 years period. In 1878, indeed, it reached 500, but, except in 1878, it was always below 500 till 1890, when it reached 629, and since then has never fallen below this figure. In 1897 it was 900. It would be unreasonable, however, to attach much importance to these figures. One jury may return a verdict of "excessive drinking," while another, on similar evidence, would find death to be due to "natural causes."

In Tables XXXI to XLI, which summarise the prison returns, it is worth while drawing special attention to the following figures:—Of 149,942 offenders who went to prison during the year, more than half (over 52 per cent.) went there in default of paying a fine. Further, of those who went to prison, 96,179—about two-thirds of the whole—were under sentence of 14 days or less. Of the remainder, 743 were under sentence of penal servitude, and only 2,920 under sentence of more than six months' imprisonment. Further, of the convicted prisoners, 85,890 had been convicted before, as against 64,052 not known to have been previously convicted, and 35,199 had been convicted more than five times (Table XXXV); 1,695 had been previously under sentences of penal servitude. It is a fact that has to be faced, that neither penal servitude nor imprisonment serves to deter the habitual offender from reverting to crime, and it is the habitual offenders who form the bulk of the prison population. In connection with this subject it may be as well to draw attention to some figures in Table LII, which require some explanation to make them generally intelligible. During the last few years it has become more and more usual, when a convict with no previous record of crime has been released on a license under the Penal Servitude

Acts, to ascertain after a period of from three to twelve months how he has conducted himself since his discharge from prison. If he has conducted himself well during that time, and seems on the fair way to lead an honest life, he is relieved from further police supervision during the currency of his license by a remission under Section 4 of the Penal Servitude Act, 1891. The answers to inquiries so made during 1897 were, with very few exceptions, satisfactory, and accordingly 152 remissions were granted. The figures for future years will deserve careful watching, but the results already obtained go far to support the contention that it is only the men previously known as criminals who revert to crime after discharge on license under a sentence of penal servitude; or, in other words, that penal servitude while having but little terror for the man who leads a life of crime, has not the effect, which is sometimes attributed to it, of crushing the moral responsibility of persons subjected to it or of barring a return to the paths of honesty. As a further illustration of this the following figures, which have been extracted by Mr. Farrant, of this office, from the calendars of prisoners for trial are worth mentioning. Of the persons convicted at the Central Criminal Court and County of London Sessions during 1897 there were 498 who came within Section 7 of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871; that is to say, 498 were known to have been previously convicted at least twice on indictment, and may fairly be regarded as belonging to the class of professional criminals. Of these, 289 had not previously been sentenced to penal servitude; 209 had been in penal servitude. Out of the 209 the calendars show that 195 had received sentence of imprisonment before being sent to penal servitude. Of the remaining 14, there is no record of any sentence before their first sentence of penal servitude; and of these 14 only could it be argued that they began their criminal career with a sentence of penal servitude. But it must be added that the record of previous convictions is by no means necessarily complete, and that moreover some of the 14 are known to have been summarily convicted on dates which may be earlier than the first conviction on indictment of which the date is given in the calendar. It is probable, therefore, that some of them at least had been sentenced to hard labour before being sentenced to penal servitude.

An additional table has been given this year [XXXIX], showing the terms for which prisoners committed for trial were detained in prison pending the Assizes or Sessions; a table was given for Assizes only in the Statistics of 1895. There were in all 8,968 so detained as against 2,231 admitted to bail. 130 were detained for more than 16 weeks; 120 of these had been committed to Assizes, of whom 30 were ultimately acquitted. 1,481 were detained for more than eight weeks, of whom 213 were acquitted. Of the 1,481, 506 were committed to Assizes, and of these 104 were acquitted.

It cannot be said that these figures are satisfactory so far as they relate to the Assizes. The 120 prisoners detained for over 16 weeks form 4·9 per cent. of the whole number committed for trial at Assizes; the corresponding number in 1895 was 115, forming only 3·9 of the whole. The number of those detained over 12 weeks was 257, forming 10·5 per cent. of the whole, as compared with 319 in 1895, and 273 in 1890, forming, respectively, 10·6 and 10·8 of the totals for those years.

Again, if we take all Courts together, Sessions as well as Assizes, we find there were 478 persons out of 11,200 detained in prison for more than 12 weeks pending trial, forming 4·2 per cent. of the whole. This compares unfavourably with the only figures available for comparison, those for 1854 and 1890 as given in the Introduction to the Statistics for 1895. These are, in 1854, 865 out of 29,359, that is to say, 3·0 per cent.; and in 1890, 477 out of 11,974, or 4·0 per cent.

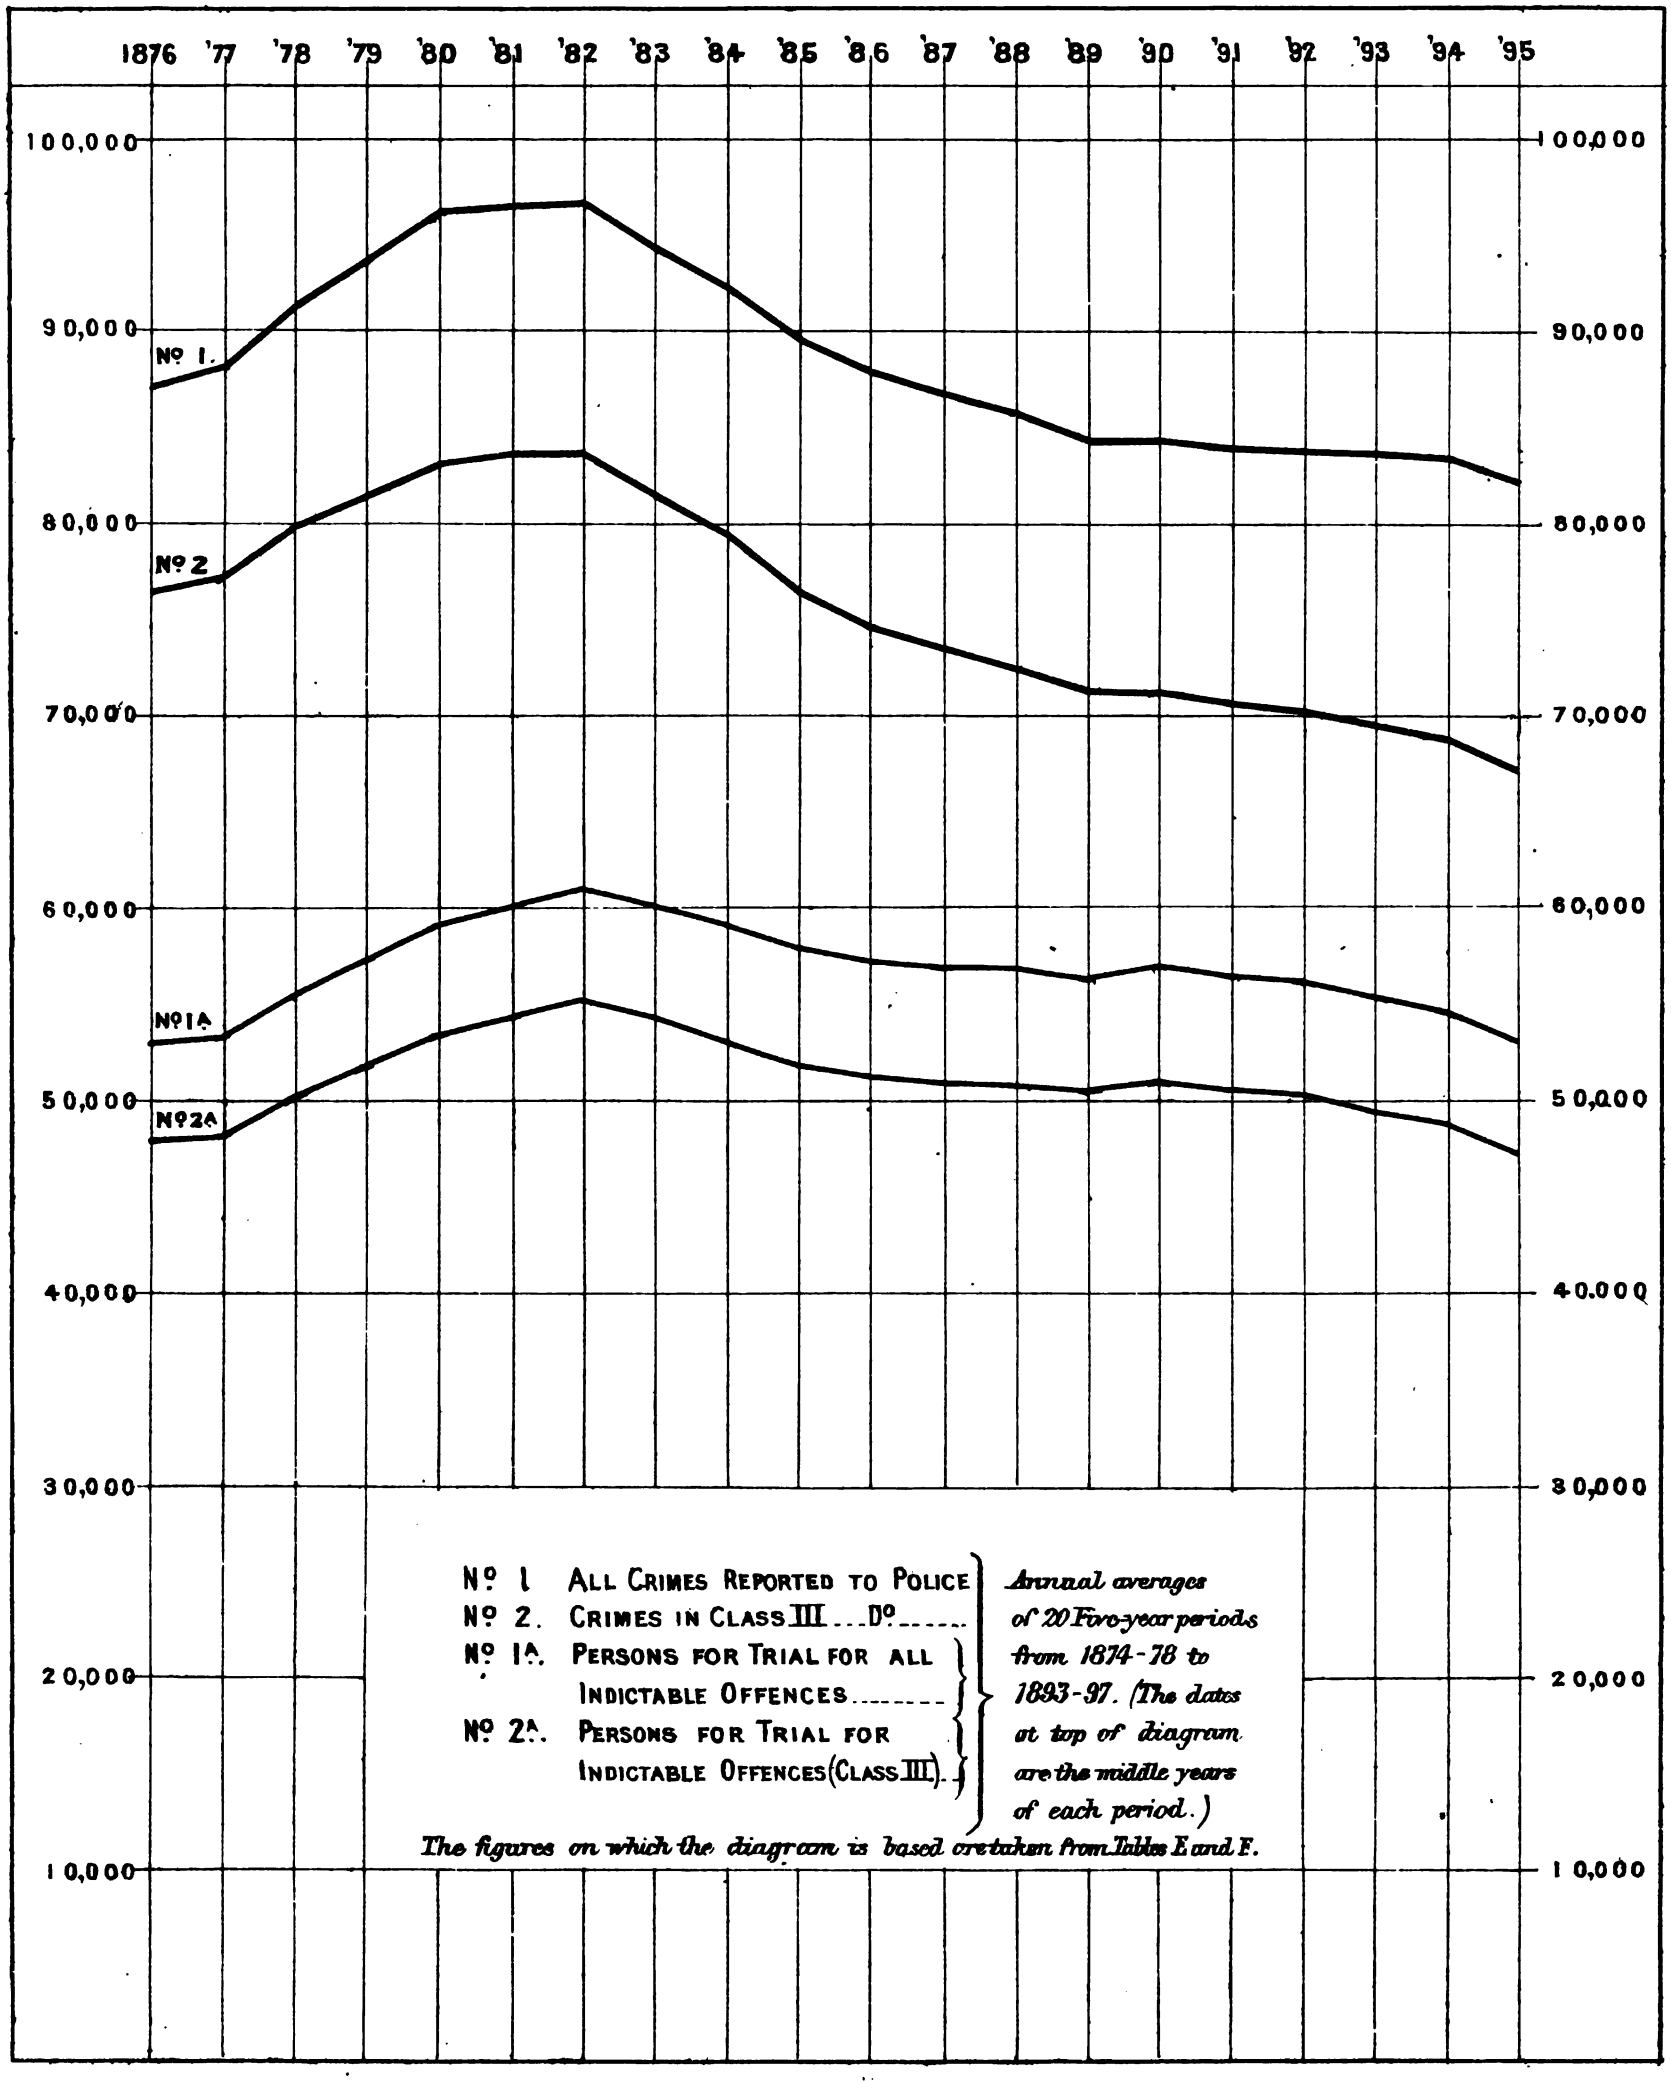

INTRODUCTION.

The total number of persons released on bail while awaiting trial in 1897 was 19·9 per cent. of the whole number committed for trial; there are no precisely similar figures for other years to compare with this, but if we take Assize cases alone, we can compare the 597 persons bailed out of 2,437 committed for trial in 1897 (24·5 per cent.), with 646 out of 2,950 in 1895, i.e., 21·9 per cent. The Bail Act, 1898, gives further facilities for admitting defendants to bail pending their trial, and it is to be hoped that an increase in the proportion of persons so dealt with may show itself more decidedly in the statistics for future years.

The proportion of persons committed for trial at Sessions who are admitted to bail is, as might be expected, lower than at Assizes, being, in 1897, 19·6 per cent. for county Sessions, and 17·1 per cent. for borough Sessions. Of those not admitted to bail there were among the county cases only 3·1 per cent., and among the borough cases 4·1 per cent. who were in prison more than 12 weeks before trial, as compared with 14·0 per cent. of Assize cases.

Notes to the Comparative Tables.

These Tables have been compiled from the annual Tables in the previous volumes of Judicial Statistics from 1874 to 1896, and the Tables for 1897 in the present volume.

The figures for 1893 to 1897 are taken from the following Tables :—

Tables A and E, Numbers tried at Assizes and Quarter Sessions, from Table V, column 2.

Tables C and F, Numbers of Crimes, from Table XIX, column 2.

Reference should be made to the notes on these Tables in regard to any questions arising on the figures for 1893 to 1897.

The figures for the years 1874 to 1892 have been adjusted so as to correspond as exactly as possible with those for 1893 to 1897. See the Introduction to the Criminal Statistics for 1893, pages 96 to 102.

The lists of offences are the same as in the annual Tables except that in several cases two or more of the headings in 1893 to 1897 are here grouped under one head. This is necessary in order to permit corresponding figures for the earlier years to be given. The matter is explained in the Introduction to the volume for 1893, pages 98 and 100 ; and in Appendices B (page 57) and C (page 66) in the same volume will be found tables showing what crimes in the old and in the new tables are included under each head in the comparative tables.

In Table D the proportions are calculated on the population for the middle year of each period of five years : e.g., those for 1893 to 1897 on the estimated population for 1895, those for 1888 to 1892 on the estimated population for 1890.

In cases in which the figures for the whole of a quinquennial period are not obtainable there is inserted the annual average for the number of years for which figures are given.

* Included, prior to 1893, under "Other Offences" in Section (B).

† Offence made punishable summarily by an Act passed in 1885.

The apparent reduction in the number of cases in 1893 is due chiefly to the fact that in previous years many cases not properly criminal are included. The matter is discussed in the Introduction to the Criminal Statistics for 1893, page 9.

TABLE C.—CRIMES, 1878 to 1897.—Number of Crimes (Indictable Offences) reported to the Police as committed in each Year from 1878 to 1897.

NOTES ON CRIMINAL COURTS AND CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.

In England the chief courts for the trial of criminal cases are the Assizes (including the Central Criminal Court) and the Courts of Quarter Sessions.

The Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice has also power to try criminal cases. The number so tried is very small. A list for the year is given at the end of Table V.

In certain exceptional cases a Court held under Special Commission tries cases in the same way as a Court of Assize. No instances of this have occurred for several years.

Assizes.

The Assizes are the courts held by Her Majesty's Judges, when they go under Royal Commissions on Circuit for the administration of justice. They are held three times a year for each county, in certain cases four times. The Central Criminal Court is a court with similar powers sitting in London, and holding 12 Sessions in the year. In law the term "Assizes" includes the Central Criminal Court (Interpretation Act, 1889, section 13 (5)); and it is so used in these Statistics.

Quarter Sessions.

A Court of Quarter Sessions exists in each County, and in those Boroughs to which a separate Court has been granted by the Crown. A list of these Courts will be found in Table VII. The Court consists in Counties of the Justices for the County assembled in Quarter Session, in Boroughs of the Recorder of the Borough, a legal officer of high standing. Its sessions are held at least four times a year, sometimes more frequently, e.g. in London there are 36 sittings in the year. The Court has powers co-ordinate with the Assizes, but less extensive; all cases which can be tried at Quarter Sessions can be tried also at Assizes, but certain offences, such as treason, murder, perjury, libel, can be tried only at Assizes.*

There is no appeal from the decisions of Assizes and Quarter Sessions. These Courts have, however, power to reserve doubtful points of law for the decision of the Court for Crown Cases Reserved. A list of such cases for the year is given in Table X.

All cases tried at Assizes and Quarter Sessions are tried on an indictment† presented by a Grand Jury, and the trial in every case without exception is by Jury.

Courts of Summary Jurisdiction.

The inferior Criminal Courts for the trial of minor cases are the Courts of Summary Jurisdiction or Police Courts. In these trial is without Jury, and the Magistrates decide both as to law and to facts; their decisions are subject in most cases to appeal, though in practice, appeals are rare (Table XV).

A Court of Summary Jurisdiction consists ordinarily of the Justices of a division of the County or of a Borough sitting in Petty Sessions. In most cases the presence of two Justices at least is necessary for the exercise of the powers of the Court; but in London and large towns there are Stipendiary Magistrates, who sit alone and have all the powers of two Justices. In certain other cases a Court of Summary Jurisdiction may consist of one Justice only, but its powers are then extremely limited.

In addition to hearing and determining all minor criminal cases, the Courts of Summary Jurisdiction conduct the preliminary investigation in those cases which are afterwards tried at Assizes and Quarter Sessions. If they find there is a primâ facie case they commit the accused to prison to await his trial, or bind him over in recognizances (usually with sureties) to appear at the Assizes or Sessions.

Courts of Summary Jurisdiction have also civil jurisdiction in certain matters. They also exercise certain powers in matters not strictly criminal, but closely allied to their criminal jurisdiction, of which particulars are given in Table XIV (Quasi-Criminal Proceedings).

* The Liberty of Peterborough has Commissions of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery as well as the usual Commission of the Peace, and the Justices can therefore try offences not within the ordinary Jurisdiction of Quarter Sessions.

† An inquisition of a Coroner's Jury is equivalent to an indictment, but cases tried on an inquisition are very rare.

Indictable Offences.

As in Courts of Assize and Quarter Sessions the procedure is by indictment, the offences tried by these courts are called "indictable offences." All the ancient Common Law Offences are indictable, and so are all statutory offences unless the statute expressly provides some other mode of trial.

Non-Indictable Offences.

In distinction from these indictable offences, offences originally within the jurisdiction of Courts of Summary Jurisdiction, are in these Tables designated "non-indictable." These are all, like the Courts of Summary Jurisdiction themselves, created by statute; and in every case they are expressly declared by the statute to be triable summarily.

Indictable Offences tried Summarily.

In certain cases offences which originally were tried on indictment only may now be tried summarily. This is done under sections 10, 11, 12, and 13 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879,* which superseded some earlier and more restricted enactments on the same subject. These offences appear in the Tables of the Proceedings of Courts of Summary Jurisdiction in a special section headed "Indictable Offences tried Summarily." In the Police Tables of indictable offences, the cases heard summarily are shown in separate columns.

Non-Indictable Offences tried as if Indictable.

On the other hand certain offences ordinarily tried summarily may in exceptional cases be sent for trial at Assizes or Quarter Sessions "as if they were indictable." This class includes Assault (Offences against the Person Act, 1861, sec. 46), all offences other than assaults punishable with 3 months' imprisonment, (Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, sec. 17), and some offences created by recent Acts, such as the Conspiracy and Protection of Property Act, 1875, the Merchandise Marks Act, 1887, the Witnesses (Public Enquiries) Protection Act, 1892, the Prevention of Cruelty to Children Act, 1894, the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, &c. These offences being ordinarily tried summarily are not separated from the other non-indictable offences in the Tables of the Proceedings of Courts of Summary Jurisdiction, and in the Tables of Non-indictable offences; but such cases as are actually sent for trial at Assizes and Quarter Sessions appear under appropriate heads (chiefly Assault, Intimidation, and Cruelty to Children) in the Assize and Quarter Sessions Tables, and in the Police Tables of Indictable Offences.

Proceedings at Assizes and Quarter Sessions.

The following are points which may be useful as explaining the headings of the columns in Tables I to VII.

At Assizes and Quarter Sessions the proceedings are commenced by the preferring of a bill of indictment or draft indictment before the Grand Jury. If the Grand Jury think there is no primâ facie case against the person accused they return the draft indictment marked "no bill," and the case is at an end. Otherwise they find the indictment or formal accusation on which the prisoner is tried. The prisoner is then arraigned or formally accused before the petty jury: and at this stage the question of the prisoner's sanity at the time of arraignment may be investigated by a jury. If found insane and unfit to plead he is not tried, but is ordered to be detained during Her Majesty's pleasure. Otherwise he is tried by the Jury.

On trial by Jury three verdicts are possible in ordinary cases: acquittal, conviction, or a special verdict to the effect that the prisoner was guilty of the act charged, but was insane at the time of committing it. If the latter is given, he is ordered to be detained during Her Majesty's pleasure. On conviction, the Judge passes sentence, which may be death,† penal servitude, imprisonment, detention in a Reformatory School (for youths under 16), fine, or whipping; or the Court may order the prisoner to enter into recognizances to come up for judgment when so required.

* Libel may also in certain cases be tried summarily (44 & 45 Vict. c. 60, s. 5).

† The offences for which judgment of death may be pronounced are murder, treason, piracy with violence, and arson of Her Majesty's ships, arsenals, dockyards, &c. For the two last-named offences the Court may order the judgment of death to be recorded, which has the same effect as if the judgment had been duly pronounced and the offender reprieved by the Court.

ASSIZES AND QUARTER SESSIONS.

NOTES.

(a.) The titles of offences (Column 1) are much condensed. The fuller titles, and the offences comprised under each head, will be found in Appendix A on page 155.

In Tables III and IV offences not triable at Quarter Sessions are omitted, but the numbering of the heads is the same as in Tables I, II, and V.

(b.) The Tables show the numbers of persons prosecuted, not the number of offences. Where therefore any person is prosecuted at the same Assizes or Sessions for several offences, one offence has to be selected for tabulation: and the rule followed is to select that for which the proceedings were carried to the furthest stage—to trial if there were several indictments, to conviction and sentence if prisoner was tried on several charges. If there are several convictions, the offence selected is that for which the heaviest punishment was awarded. If the final result of proceedings on two or more charges is the same, the more serious offence (as measured by the maximum penalty allowed by the law) appears in the Tables.

(c.) Where, in addition to the offence thus selected for detailed tabulation, the same person is prosecuted for other offences of a distinct character, and charged in separate indictments, the number of these additional charges is given in Columns 22 to 24 of Tables I, III, and V; Column 22 giving the total number of such charges, Column 23 the number resulting in convictions, and Column 24 the number for which separate sentences (not concurrent with those in columns 11 to 17) are passed. Only distinct offences charged in separate indictments are included in these columns: additional indictments merely varying the form of the charge, and additional charges appearing as counts in the same indictment, are excluded.

(d.) Where a person is prosecuted for one offence and convicted for another (e.g., committed for murder, and convicted of manslaughter) the case appears only under the offence of which he was convicted.

(e.) All the Tables are for the calendar year ending 31st December, and include only cases finally determined within the year. Cases not entirely disposed of within the year (e.g., tried, but sentence postponed) are held over for the next year's Tables.

When, however, the Epiphany Quarter Sessions commence before the end of the year, any cases disposed of on or before December 31st are included in the Return for the following year, so as to give four quarters uniformly in each year.

Tables I, III, and V.

(f.) Columns 2, 3, and 4 ("Numbers for Trial") include only such cases as actually come before the Assizes or Quarter Sessions. Persons who die, escape from prison, abscond while on bail, or are removed to an asylum before trial are not included.

(g.) Column 13 ("Imprisonment") does not include the sentences of imprisonment which sometimes precede sentences of detention in a Reformatory School, nor does it include sentences of imprisonment in default of payment of fine, or in default of finding sureties.

(h.) Columns 15 and 19 ("Fine") include all cases where payment of a fine is imposed as the sentence or part of the sentence, whether the fine is actually paid or not.

(i.) Columns 17 and 21 ("Recognizances with or without Sureties") include cases where recognizances are required whether with or without sureties, and, if sureties are required, whether they are found or not.

(j.) Columns 18 to 21 are for those cases where more than one punishment is imposed for the same offence. Thus, if a person convicted of larceny is sentenced to be imprisoned and whipped, the imprisonment appears in Column 13, the whipping in Column 20.

Table VI.

(l.) The counties in this table are, as regards their area and boundaries, the administrative counties; but Lincoln, Northampton, Cambridge, Suffolk, Sussex, and Southampton are each treated as one county, and County Boroughs are included in the counties in which they are situated geographically. Bristol is included wholly in Gloucester, York in the North Riding of Yorkshire, and Stockport in Cheshire.

(m.) Where several persons are charged with the same offence, this is entered as one case in Column 2, but as several persons in Column 3.

(n.) Where there are several charges against the same person, this is entered as one case in Column 2. In selecting the offences for tabulation and giving the results of proceedings, the same rules are followed as in Tables I, III, and V.

Table VIII.

(o.) In this Table the titles of offences which do not occur during the year are omitted, but the numbering is the same as in the preceding Tables. This note applies to Table IX also.

(p.) Children who have not completed their twelfth year are regarded as under 12, and are entered in Column 5. Column 6 includes all persons who have completed 12 years, but not completed 16 years, and similarly with the other columns.

* Including one prisoner discharged without sentence.
‡ Including two prisoners discharged without sentence.
§ Separate Courts of Quarter Sessions are held for the two divisions of the County (37 & 38 Vict. c. 45).
The jurisdiction of the Dover and Sandwich Quarter Sessions extends to such members of these two Cinque Ports as have no separate Courts of Quarter Sessions.
¶ Lancashire was divided for Assize purposes by an Order in Council, dated 4th May 1864. The Northern Division comprises the Hundreds of Lonsdale, Amounderness, Leyland, and Blackburn. Salford Division comprises Salford Hundred, and West Derby Division comprises West Derby Hundred.

* Each of the three Parts of Lincoln has a separate Commission of the Peace.

† The Central Criminal Court having concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Quarter Sessions, all criminal cases arising within the City are, as a matter of convenience, tried at the former court.

‡ According to the day Census taken by direction of the Corporation, the day population of the City of London, on 27th April 1891, was 301,384.

§ This Court is still held, but no prisoners are tried, and the proceedings are purely formal.

‖ The Soke or Liberty of Peterborough has had a separate Court of Quarter Sessions since the reign of Edward III, and in addition to the usual Commission of the Peace, there are Commissions of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery.

¶ Including one prisoner who died before being sentenced.

 Including one prisoner discharged without sentence.

†† Including two prisoners discharged without sentence.

COURTS OF SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

NOTES.

Tables XI, XII, and XIII.

(a.) These Tables include only offences tried summarily. All Indictable Offences where the Court does not actually assume the power to determine the case summarily are excluded. Further, these Tables include only cases where the proceedings are criminal—that is, lead if successful to a conviction. There are a large number of cases which are quasi-criminal in character, but where the procedure is by complaint, leading, not to a conviction, but to the making of an order. These are provided for in a separate Table—No. XIV.

(b.) The Tables show the number of persons prosecuted, not the number of offences. Where therefore any person is prosecuted at the same time for several offences one offence has to be selected for tabulation, and the rules followed are the same as in Tables I to V. (See note (b) page 30.)

(c.) The offences included under each of the titles of offences in Column 1 are stated in Appendix B on page 163.

Table XI.

(d.) Table XI corresponds to Tables I, III, and V, and (as regards length of sentences) to Tables II and IV.

(e.) Column 5 contains all cases dealt with under Section 16 (1) of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, including those where the defendant is ordered to pay costs or compensation.

(f.) Column 6, "Committed to Industrial School," includes only those committals to Industrial Schools where an offence is charged—i.e., committals under Section 15 of the Industrial Schools Act, 1866, and Section 12 of the Elementary Education Act, 1876. Other committals to Industrial Schools where the proceedings are not criminal appear in Table XIV and also in Table XLVI.

(g.) Columns 8 to 14, "Imprisonment," do not include the preliminary imprisonment in Reformatory School cases, nor terms of imprisonment in default of paying fine or of finding sureties.

(h.) Column 15, "Reformatory School," contains all cases of persons sentenced to Reformatory School detention, whether they are actually admitted to a reformatory or not. Details as to cases actually received in reformatories are given in Table XLIV.

(i.) Columns 17 and 20, "Fine," include all cases where a fine is imposed whether the fine is paid or not. The number of persons committed to prison in default of paying fines is given in Tables XXXIII and XXXIV.

(k.) Columns 18, 18A, 18B, and 21, "Recognizances," include all cases where the defendant is ordered to find sureties, whether the sureties are found or not. It must be remembered, however, that the Table applies only to convictions, and that it does not include cases where a person is required to find sureties upon complaint. These cases are included in Table XIV.

Table XIII.

(m.) This Table corresponds to Table VIII. The rule as to ages is the same. The first part gives the ages of all persons convicted summarily of indictable offences, and is exactly on the same basis as Table VIII. The second part, however, contains only persons apprehended and convicted: persons convicted on summons have to be excluded on account of the difficulty of ascertaining their ages.

Table XVIII.—PUBLIC PROSECUTIONS.—Number of Prosecutions undertaken by the Director of Public Prosecutions, and Results.

(a.) "Offences."—The titles of the indictable offences are the same as in Tables I to V; of non-indictable offences as in Table XI. The table includes all prosecutions completed within the year; cases pending at the end of the year are reserved for inclusion in next year's tables.

(b.) In Columns 2 to 6, "number of prosecutions undertaken," each case appears as one only, though several persons may be involved or several charges brought. In Columns 7 to 15 (number of persons prosecuted, &c.) the number of persons is given. Where the same person is prosecuted for several offences, one offence is selected for tabulation by the same rule as is followed in Tables I to V. In such cases, the number of charges not included in Columns 2 to 15 is given in Column 16.

(c.) Column 17 gives the total costs charged to the Vote for Law Charges, any costs allowed by the Court being deducted.

NOTES.

Table XIX.

(a.) Column 1, "Offences."—The titles of the offences are the same as in Tables I to V.

(b.) Column 2, "Number of Crimes known to police."—This column includes all crimes reported to the police or otherwise coming to their knowledge within the year whether committed by the same or different persons, and whether any apprehension takes place within the year or not.

(c.) If there is a committal or conviction within the year, the table shows the nature of the crime as judicially determined. Failing this, the charge which is named in the summons or warrant or on which the prisoner is arrested is taken as determining the crime. If there are no proceedings and no apprehension, the character of the crime is judged by the facts so far as known to the police.

(d.) In Columns 3 to 21 the number of persons proceeded against is given, not the number of crimes or charges. A person charged at the same time with several offences appears as one person only. In selecting the offence for tabulation the same principle is followed as in Tables I to V—the charge resulting in conviction or committal for trial has preference to the others; and subject to this the more serious offence is selected. If there are two or more convictions, that for which the heavier sentence is inflicted is regarded as the more serious. These columns include only cases disposed of within the year. Cases pending at the end of the year are reserved for inclusion in the following year's tables.

(e.) Columns 7, 8, 15, and 16, "Discharged," contain cases where the magistrate does not assume power to try the case summarily, but discharges the accused under Section 25 of the Indictable Offences Act, 1848.

(f.) Columns 9 and 17, "Tried Summarily and Discharged," contain cases where, after the magistrate has decided to deal summarily with the case, the charge is dismissed or withdrawn. They include cases dealt with under Section 16 (1) of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879.

(g.) Columns 10 and 18, "Tried Summarily and Convicted," include cases dealt with under Section 16 (2) of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, and under the Probation of First Offenders Act, 1887.

(h.) Columns 11 and 19, "Committed for Trial and sent to Prison," include all persons committed to prison to await trial, whether they are subsequently released on bail or not.

Table XX.

(i.) The titles of the offences are the same as in Table XI (b), and, as in that Table, only criminal proceedings are included.

(j.) Notes (c) and (d) above apply to this table.

(k.) Columns 6 and 10, "Discharged," include cases dealt with under Section 16 (1) of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879.

(l.) Columns 7 and 11, "Convicted," include cases dealt with under Section 16 (2) of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, and under the Probation of First Offenders Act, 1887.

Tables XXIII and XXIV.

(m.) Table XXIII gives the number of crimes in each Police District, i.e., the number of crimes of the nature of Indictable Offences reported within the year to the police as committed within the Police District. Table XXIV is the corresponding Table for Non-Indictable Offences: but as in this case no figures of the number of offences committed or reported to the police can be given, the table gives the number of persons proceeded against. In other words Table XXIII gives the distribution in Police Districts of the figures in Column 2 of Table XIX, Table XXIV the distribution in Police districts of the figures in Columns 2 and 9 of Table XX.

TABLE XXV.—RETURNS FROM THE SEVERAL POLICE DISTRICTS.—Character of Persons Prosecuted.

Columns 3, 4, and 5, "Habitually engaged in Crime," include persons who are known to engage habitually in crime as their means, or part of their means of livelihood. Persons previously convicted, but not habitual criminals, are not included. Crime is understood in the sense given to it by the definition in Section 20 of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871, viz., any felony and the following misdemeanours:—uttering or possessing counterfeit coin, false pretences, conspiracy to defraud, and possession of house-breaking implements, or any offence under Section 58 of the Larceny Act, 1861.

Column 8, "Other Persons of Bad Character," includes persons with previous convictions of dishonesty, but not habitual criminals; it also includes persons frequently guilty of assaults and other acts of violence or disorder, prostitutes' bullies, habitual poachers, keepers of brothels and gaming and betting houses, and such like.

No case is included under more than one head, e.g., a woman who is an habitual thief and also a prostitute appears in Column 3, and not in Column 6.

RETURNS FROM THE SEVERAL POLICE DISTRICTS.

TABLE XXVII.—Numbers of Houses of Bad Character.

The enumeration for the purposes of these Tables was made on the first Tuesday in April 1897.

Persons who have been convicted of crime, but who are reasonably believed to be living honestly at the date of the Return are not included in this Table.

Columns 3, 4, and 5, "Habitually engaged in Crime," apply to the same cases as the corresponding columns in the preceding table.

Column 6, "Other Suspected Persons," includes persons frequently guilty of minor offences, though not coming within Columns 3, 4, and 5; it also includes habitual poachers, keepers of brothels, and of gaming and betting houses, &c., but not mere prostitutes, disorderly drunkards, &c.

Columns 8 and 9, "Persons at Large under Police Supervision," include all persons under actual police supervision, whether included or not in the previous Columns 2 to 6.

Column 11, "Houses of Receivers of Stolen Goods," includes houses reasonably suspected of being used for the receipt of stolen goods, whether there is an actual conviction against the occupier or not.

Columns 12, 13, and 14 include all houses where thieves and other habitual criminals regularly resort and meet, whether or not the occupiers of the houses are suspected of wilfully harbouring them, or of complicity in their crimes.

"Crimes known to Police" has the same meaning here as in Table XIX.

"Apprehensions" means the number of apprehensions for indictable offences actually effected in each month, this differing from Table XIX, which gives "Persons Apprehended" whose cases are disposed of within the year.

CORONERS.

NOTES.

Table XXIX.

(a). Inquests held on several bodies simultaneously (e.g., where several persons have been killed at the same time by a railway accident or a colliery explosion) are in the following Tables reckoned, not as one inquest, but as separate inquests on each person.

(b). Columns 3 and 5 include the inquests on the bodies of children who at the time of death had not completed one year. Columns 4 and 6, the inquests on those who had completed one year, but not completed seven years, are similarly in the other columns. Where the actual age is not known, the age is estimated as nearly as possible.

Table XXX.

(c). In column 6 ("Suicide, while Insane") are included those cases where the verdict is to the effect that there is no evidence to determine the state of mind of the deceased.

(d). Column 8 ("Disease Aggravated by Neglect by Others") and column 11 ("Want of Attention at Birth") include those cases of neglect which fall short of manslaughter.

(e). Column 9 ("Want, Cold, Exposure, &c.") includes verdicts of death by disease aggravated by want, cold, exposure, or by self-neglect, and column 10 ("Excessive Drinking") includes verdicts of death by disease aggravated by excessive drinking.

(f). Column 13 ("Death from Natural Causes") includes verdicts of death by disease or death from old age.

(g). Column 17 ("Found Dead, Cause of Death unascertainable") includes the cases where, owing to decomposition or other like causes, it is impossible to determine the cause of death.

(h). Columns 19 and 20 include inquests on the bodies of children who have died shortly after birth, or who, so far as is known or can be judged, have not lived longer than 24 hours. The cases shown in columns 19 and 20 are also entered according to the cause of death in columns 2 to 18.

PRISON RETURNS.

NOTES.

Table XXXI.

(a.) This table gives the numbers of each class of prisoners received in each prison during the year. In the case of prisoners committed for trial it is necessary to distinguish those who were and those who were not previously in prison on remand: otherwise in making up the total the same person would, in many cases, count twice—as a remand prisoner and as a prisoner committed for trial. Similarly convicted prisoners have to be divided into those who were and those who were not in detention before trial. The figures of the cases which thus appear a second or a third time are printed in italics, columns 3, 5, and 7. The total of criminal prisoners, column 10, is obtained by adding the figures in the other columns 2, 4, 6, 8, and 9.

The table gives only the first receptions of prisoners on remand, committal for trial, &c. When prisoners are transferred from one prison to another they appear only in the return from the prison in which they are first received, not in that from the prison to which they are removed. Hence the returns from convict prisons contain only a few military convicts and sometimes convicts received from the Channel Islands, &c., as all ordinary convicts undergo some detention in local prisons before transfer to convict prisons.

(b.) Column 11, "Surety Prisoners," includes only unconvicted persons imprisoned in default of finding sureties to keep the peace or to be of good behaviour.

(c.) Column 12, "Debtors," comprises all persons who are treated as debtors in prison, including persons imprisoned for non-payment of sums due under orders made by Courts of Summary Jurisdiction, for non-payment of rates, and for non-payment of estreated recognizances, bankrupts imprisoned to prevent absconding, &c.

SECTION (a).

(d.) This table gives, in columns 2 to 9, the numbers of prisoners on remand who are disposed of within the year. It therefore includes those in prison on remand on 1st January, but not those on remand and still undisposed of on 31st December. Those who after remand are discharged appear in column 3, those convicted summarily in column 4, those committed for trial in column 5.

(e.) Similar remarks apply to columns 10 to 15. Prisoners waiting trial on 1st January are included, those waiting trial and not disposed of on December 31st are excluded.

SECTION (b).

(f.) This table shows only the final disposal of each convicted prisoner released or removed during the year. Each case appears only under the prison from which the prisoner is finally discharged or removed. If a prisoner has been removed from one prison to another, his case is included in the figures for the last prison only.

(g.) This table includes all cases received under sentence during the year from 1st January to 31st December, whether in prison before conviction or not.

(h.) All prisoners appear in the return from the prison in which they are first received after sentence, and not in the return for any prison to which they may be subsequently removed.

(i.) Column 5 contains only cases where a license is forfeited on conviction by a Court of Summary Jurisdiction for an offence under Section 5 of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871. Other cases of forfeiture and all cases of revocation of license are included in column 21.

Table XXXIV.

(j.) In this table two sentences passed at the same time and ordered to run consecutively are treated as one sentence equal in length to the two added together. In the case of concurrent sentences the longer only is given.

Table XXXVI.

(k.) Where the actual date of birth is known the age is given for the birthday immediately preceding the date of reception in prison. In other cases the age is given as nearly as possible.

TABLE XXXI.—PRISONERS.—Receptions of Prisoners in each Prison.

TABLE XXXIX.—UNCONVICTED PRISONERS.—Terms of Detention, before Trial, of Persons tried in each Court.

te.—The term of detention is reckoned from the date on which the prisoner was committed for trial to the date on which his trial commenced, both these days being included. Where a prisoner after committal to prison was released on bail, the detention is reckoned to the date of release on bail. The number acquitted includes cases in which the Grand Jury returned no bill; in these cases the detention is reckoned to the date of the decision of the Grand Jury.

REFORMATORY AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

NOTES.

Tables XLII, XLIV, and XLV.

(a.) These tables comprise all admissions into the School during the year on orders of detention. Re-admissions on expiration or revocation of license or on recapture after escape are not included; nor are admissions on transfer from another school.

Tables XLIII and XLVII.

(b.) Columns 2 to 5, "Numbers finally Discharged," include children discharged, or whose sentence expired, while on license, but not children who die or escape during the year, nor children whose sentences of detention expire while they are at large after escape.

(c.) Columns 6 and 10 show the total number of children who have left the school during the year—Column 6 those who, when they left, left it finally on absolute discharge, their sentences having expired or the Secretary of State having discharged them; Column 10 those who left on license. The latter,—those who have been included in column 10 on leaving the school on license,—do not appear in column 6 when their sentence subsequently expires; nor, if they are recalled to the school and released a second time on license, do they again appear in column 10.

Column 7 gives the average actual detention of those in column 6, that is of those who leave the school on expiry of sentence or discharge not having been previously licensed; column 13 gives the average detention up to the date of license of those in column 10, that is of those who are licensed.

Table XLVI.

(e.) This table comprises all admissions into Industrial Schools on order of detention. In Day Industrial Schools voluntary cases and cases received on license from Industrial Schools are also included. Re-admissions on revocation of license or on re-capture after escape are not included, nor are admissions on transfer from another school.

(f.) The following are the different classes of committals distinguished in columns 3 to 13:—

Column 3.—Children apparently under the age of 14 years, found begging or receiving alms (whether actually or under the pretext of selling, or offering for sale, anything), or being in any street or public place for the purpose of so begging or receiving alms (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118, s. 14).

Column 4.—Children apparently under the age of 14 years, found wandering, and not having any home or settled place of abode, or proper guardianship, or visible means of subsistence (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118, s. 14).

Column 5.—Children, apparently under the age of 14 years, found destitute, either being orphans, or having a surviving parent who is undergoing either penal servitude or imprisonment (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118, s. 14).

Column 6.—Children, apparently under the age of 14 years, that frequent the company of reputed thieves (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118, s. 14).

Column 7.—Children, apparently under the age of 14 years, lodging, living, or residing with common or reputed prostitutes, or in a house resided in or frequented by prostitutes for the purpose of prostitution. Children, apparently under the age of 14 years, that frequent the company of prostitutes (43 & 44 Vict. c. 15, s. 1).

Column 8.—Children, apparently under the age of 12 years, who are charged before two justices or a magistrate, with an offence punishable by imprisonment or a less punishment, but who have not been in England convicted of felony, or in Scotland of theft (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118, s. 15).

Column 9.—Children, apparently under the age of 14 years, whose parents, step parents, or guardians, represent to two justices or a magistrate, that they are unable to control the child, and that they desire that the child be sent to a certified industrial school (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118, s. 16).

Column 10.—Children, apparently under the age of 14 years, inmates of a workhouse or pauper school, in respect of whom the guardians of the poor or board of management represent that they are refractory, or that they are the children of parents, one of whom has been convicted of a crime or offence punishable with penal servitude or imprisonment, and that it is desirable that the child should be sent to a certified industrial school (29 & 30 Vict. c. 118, s. 17).

Column 11.—Children sent to an industrial school for non-compliance with an attendance order, made on the ground that his parent habitually, and without reasonable excuse, neglected to provide efficient elementary education for him (39 & 40 Vict. c. 79, s. 12 (1)).

Column 12.—Children committed to an industrial school for non-compliance with an attendance order, made on the ground that the child was found habitually wandering, or not under proper control, or in the company of rogues, vagabonds, disorderly persons, or reputed criminals (39 & 40 Vict. c. 79, s. 12 (2)).

Column 13.—Children sent to Day Industrial Schools who wilfully neglect to attend thereat, or wilfully neglect or refuse to conform to the rules of the School (Order in Council of 20 March 1877, Art. 28).

In Day Industrial Schools there are also the following classes:—

Column 14.—Admissions under Attendance Orders (39 & 40 Vict. c. 79, s. 11, and Order in Council of 20 March 1877, Art. 13).

Column 15.—Admissions without order of Court (voluntary cases) (39 & 40 Vict. c. 79, s. 16 (4), and Order in Council of 20 March 1877, Art. 15).

Column 16.—Children admitted on license from Industrial and Truant Schools (39 & 40 Vict. c. 79, s. 14, and Order in Council of 20 March 1877, Art. 17).

* On the 31st December 1897 there were 171 boys and 60 girls on the Reserve Register, i.e., children whose term of detention had not expired, but who during the year had ceased to attend the school owing to the removal of their parents from the town or for other reasons.

† Five boys and 3 girls were, after expiry of sentence, recalled to the School in pursuance of Sec. I (2) of the Industrial Schools Acts Amendment Act, 1894.

‡ The cases in this column consist mainly of children committed by Justices to other schools on being charged with fresh offences. These cases were as follows:—from Industrial Schools to Reformatory Schools 25 boys and 2 girls; from Truant Schools to Reformatory Schools 21 boys, to Industrial Schools 31 boys; from Day Industrial Schools to Reformatory Schools 10 boys and 1 girl, to Industrial Schools 128 boys and 19 girls; to Truant Schools 11 boys.

TABLE XLIX.—CRIMINAL LUNATICS.—Receptions into Asylums and Discharges during the Year.

In columns 2 to 6 each case is shown as a reception in the asylum in which the patient is first received as a criminal lunatic. Removals from one asylum to another are not shown.

In columns 12 to 14 "Absolutely discharged," means "absolutely discharged" from the condition of criminal lunatic under section 5 of the Criminal Lunatics Act, 1884. Persons so discharged, if still insane, are detained as ordinary lunatics.

(a).—The classification of the grounds on which pardons, &c., are granted requires some further explanation:—

Column 3, "On grounds affecting the original conviction," includes pardons or remissions on account of fresh evidence establishing prisoners innocence, or showing reasonable doubt as to guilt, or altering the view taken as to the nature or gravity of the offence.

Column 5, "On medical grounds," includes persons discharged solely on medical grounds, e.g., persons whose lives were endangered by imprisonment, women near their confinement, who, if longer detained, would not have been fit for discharge at the expiration of their sentence, persons discharged for removal to hospitals for infectious diseases, &c. Where the medical condition of the persons formed only a part of the grounds for the exercise of the prerogative, the cases are tabulated under other heads.

Column 7, "In simple mitigation of Sentence," in distinction from column 3, comprises all cases where the mitigation granted does not imply any alteration of the view taken by the Court, as to the prisoner's guilt or as to the nature or gravity of his offence, but where weight is given, with or without a recommendation from the judge or magistrate, to such extenuating circumstances as youth, provocation, mental disturbance, &c.; also cases where remission is granted for reasons not cognizable to the Court, as where a short remission enables a prisoner to avail himself of some special opportunity of making a new start in life.

(b).—"Remanet."—When a convict is released on licence he is liable, if again convicted, to undergo a term of penal servitude, equal to the portion of his original sentence unexpired at the time of his release. This is known as a "remanet."
